

08.30.2013 I read Harold and the Purple Crayon to the students. In the book, Harold uses his purple crayon to draw objects and characters and the story continues based on his drawings. I have introduced students to Red the Dragon, our classroom mascot. Red sleeps in our classroom during the day. Children are very excited when Red wakes up and comes to visit us during our circle time. The students helped me tell the story of "Red Dragon and the Red Crayon." We explored aspects of story-telling such as character and plot as they drew different characters and objects to help tell the story. Erin
