Pretend Soup

While reading Today is Monday by Eric Carle, students participated in making Wednesday's "pretend soup". Ingredients for the soup included orange juice, honey, lemons, berries, and bananas. Students learned about measuring with fractions and other real world applicable math fundamentals while helping make the soup. Students were also given an activity where they sequenced the steps of the recipe using picture symbols. Teachers supported by asking questions about the recipe and encouraging students to count and make predictions about color and flavor. 9-13
